Meet Elizabeth Hyun, 2023 Scholar

Elizabeth’s project: A Comparative Study on Psychotraumatology: Investigating Trauma Discourse and Trauma Care in Post-Conflict Countries. Liz traveled to five post-conflict nations in 10 weeks to study how historical context contributes to trauma diagnoses. Liz’s research involved a series of expert interviews with professionals and scholars in the fields of mental health, social science, and community support in Buenos Aires, Argentina; Belfast, Northern Ireland; Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina; Tokyo, Japan; and Seoul, South Korea.

Elizabeth is currently studying Neuroscience, Global Health, and Classical Studies at Northwestern University. Born in South Korea and raised in Dallas, Texas, Liz developed her passion for traveling from hearing travel stories from her parents and coming from a multicultural background. She is a fellow at the Global Learning Office, an undergraduate research assistant at Feinberg, and a volunteer for several campus organizations as well as Northshore Evanston Hospital.
